Fiscal's new signings

NEW ADDITIONS: From left to right, Ian Rodger, Shane Mullins and Roger Summerton

Roger Summerton, former senior partner at KPMG in Nottingham, has a new role.

He is taking over as finance director and "head of family office" at wealth management company Fiscal Engineers.

The specialist firm was set up by managing director Shane Mullins in 2000.

Fiscal, based in The Ropewalk in Nottingham, is strengthening its team in response to growing demand for its services.

Ian Rodger also joins as senior financial planner. He will work alongside Mr Mullins and has switched from accountants Grant Thornton.

Mr Mullins said: "These changes will ensure we continue to set standards within our sector in terms of advice, service and innovation."

Fiscal provides services to private clients and trustees in the Midlands with at least £1m to invest or manage. It is setting up an advisory board later this year to act as a think-tank and provide in-depth knowledge and insight from across the industry.

Total assets under its management exceed £145m and are set to double over the next five years.
